Stone Beer Week

Old Town, Bucktown/Wicker Park

It took years for the much-revered Stone Brewing Co. to make its way from California to Chicago beer taps, but lo and behold, the brew is here. And we're ready to celebrate. Stone reps continue a week of tasting parties and meet-and-greets Sunday at Whole Foods Market (1550 N. Kingsbury St. 312-587-0648) with 15 of the brewery's beers on tap, plus passed apps and an appearance from CEO and founder Greg Koch. (Psst: Be sure to seek out the vintage tasting room for sips of Stone's vintage and rare beers.) In the evening, meet Koch and Co. at the Map Room (1949 N. Hoyne Ave. 773-252-7636) to taste five limited Stone beers, including Stone Smoked Porter with vanilla beans and Bitter Chocolate oatmeal stout, on tap. For the full list of Stone Beer Week events, head to metromix.com. No cover. Beer prices vary.

When: 4 p.m. Sunday (Whole Foods); 8 p.m. Sunday (The Map Room)

WATCH

'Cougars! The Musical'

Lincoln Park

This new stage comedy, opening Saturday at the Greenhouse Theater Center (2257 N. Lincoln Ave. 773-404-7336), is everything the name implies—and so much more—thanks to comedian-actor Gillian Bellinger, who wrote the musical with a sassy "Golden Girls" focus. Not a cougar? It's not necessary to laugh along with the conquests of these three cougars, prowling for young love in their lives. (Bellinger, by the way, is only 30.) Read our Q&A with Bellinger at metromix.com to learn her definition of a cougar and the show's chick-flick status. $15; $10 for students.

When: 10:30 p.m. Saturday, through May 22 (except April 17)

Loop

Join Metromix and RedEye personalities as they fete the winners of Saturday afternoon's big Movie Madness race, in which teams compete for Foursquare badges at the scenes of movies filmed in Chicago ("Ferris Bueller's Day Off," "High Fidelity" and "The Dark Knight"). Show up at the Chicago Theatre (175 N. State St. 312-462-6300) at 6 p.m. for a free party to meet the winners, chat with bloggers, eat free Wow Bao and test your movie deftness during trivia with Metromix movies and music producer Matt Pais. Includes a cash bar.

When: 6-9 p.m. Saturday

EAT

Aldino's brunch

Little Italy

This is one of the biggest brunch weekends of the year (Easter is Sunday; do you have reservations?); take this opportunity to try something new. Launching on Sunday is brunch at new rustic-Italian spot Aldino's (626 S. Racine Ave. 312-226-9300), offering fresh seasonal items from chef-owner Dean Zanella, formerly of 312 Chicago. Choose from sweet French toast ($11) made with panettone (bread made for big holidays in Italy); baked eggs in Amatriciana ($10), a traditional Italian tomato sauce; frittata ($10); bruschetta with goats milk ricotta ($6); and more. Aldino's is still a couple of weeks away from opening its sandwich-focused market, but brunch surely will hold us over until then.

When: 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Sunday

EAT (SOME MORE)

If you're stuck for Easter plans and your fam is driving into town as you read this, brunch options still abound. A $29 three-course meal from chef Michael Taus awaits at Duchamp (2118 N. Damen Ave. 773-235-6434) on Sunday, featuring citrus-roasted beet salad, maple nut granola, French toast with lemon mascarpone, smoked Norwegian salmon and cupcakes. For something a little lighter, check out old-school cartoons and house-made "pop tarts" at the Pajama Jam Brunch at Bull & Bear (431 N. Wells St. 312-527-5973) all weekend. For more Easter options, head to metromix.com.

When: 11 a.m. Sunday (Duchamp); 10 a.m. Saturday-Sunday (Bull & Bear)

Alfresco drinking

Loop, River West, River North, Bucktown/Wicker Park

In case you didn't notice, the weather was gorgeous this week. If you're still hankering for drinking on outdoor patios, you're in luck: Oodles of spots opened their patios early for the season, and (fingers crossed) the weekend weather won't completely slash summery temps. Where to go? The outdoor terrace at Roof (201 N. State St. The Wit Hotel. 312-239-9501), the back patio at the Red Canary (695 N. Milwaukee Ave. 312-846-1475), the sidewalk at Bull & Bear (431 N. Wells St. 312-527-5973) and the big ol' French doors at 6 Degrees (1935 N. Damen Ave. 773-904-8812) are all open, weather permitting.

How's your gaydar?

Matt: Can't tell if it's broken. When focused on Ricky Martin, its reply was "Man's man."

Connie: Awful. When I was 14, I referred to myself as "Mrs. Martin."

Brandon Roberts (@youretro career): Bad, because I'm still single (tweet me, fellas).

The line to buy an iPad was so long that ...

Matt: ... I could see it from Starbucks, where I still had no plans to buy an iPad.

Connie: ... by the time people got to the front of the line, it was summer.

Kim Z. Dale (@newetiquette): ... Census workers counted the people in line and declared their job done.

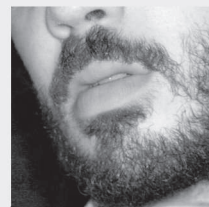

If Matt Damon's not the one for Liz Lemon, who is?

Matt: Someone who hasn't slept with Sarah Silverman.

Connie: That Neil Patrick Harris is a cutie, and I think he's single!

Alek Babel (@alekbabel): Alek Babel.

Particle physicists are so adorable when they're excited about atoms

Somewhere on the Swiss-French border Tuesday, about 300 feet below ground, two protons collided at super-duper-duper speeds and produced 7 trillion electron volts of energy. That's amazing on a molecular scale, especially when you consider that the energy produced by burning wood is a single electron volt.

We don't doubt that the $10 billion atom-smashing effort to re-create the conditions just after the Big Bang are important, but nobody on the RedEye staff is an astrophysicist, so some of the details are lost on us. What we do know is scientists are bilarious when they're excited. Check out these geek-tastic quotes about the accomplishment—and RedEye's completely speculative take on what they really meant.

"This is a huge step toward unraveling Genesis Chapter 1, Verse 1—what happened in the beginning."

—Michio Kaku, co-founder of string field theory and author of the book "Physics of the Impossible"

● "I'm so going to write a prequel to the Old Testament."

"This is the Jurassic Park for particle physicists."

—Phil Schewe, spokesman for the American Institute of Physics

● "In your face, paleontology snobs!"

"It's a great day to be a particle physicist."

—Rolf Heuer, director general of the European Center for Nuclear Research

● "Hello, MTV? Are you looking for a hot, new 'Jersey Shore' cast member?"

"Finally the baby is delivered. Now it has to grow."

—Bivek Sharma, professor at the University of California at San Diego

● "I'm not going to get a full night's sleep until 2011."

Three things ...

Forget Mars and Venus. When it comes to the truth behind the tresses, men and women often speak different languages. In the name of greater gender understanding, Red Eye surveyed local stylists and collected these top tips. E.S.

... MEN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT WOMEN

» Cuts and coloring are more expensive than you think. Be grateful for your cheap cuts.

» If you think the woman in your life spends a long time on her hair, think again. Cutting techniques and styling tools for women's tresses have advanced significantly—hello, flat-iron straightener!—so prep work has been reduced to a fraction of the time it used to take.

» Extensions are here to stay. Many stylists in coed salons reported their male clients are weirded out by women's hair extensions. But longer locks often are achieved through this technique—and you'd never know the difference.

... WOMEN SHOULD KNOW ABOUT MEN

» Whether it looks like it or not, men do spend time prepping in the morning, especially when sporting the more tousled, longer looks that are en vogue this spring.

» One stylist claimed that if a man pays attention to his hair, he'll likely pay more attention to the woman in his life. It's not exactly scientific, but it's an interesting theory.

» Just because your fella cares about his hair doesn't mean he wants you to come to the salon and micromanage his cut. It's better to leave those decisions to the professionals and tell him how awesome he looks afterward.

After hiding beneath a bulky hat during the winter months, your warm-weather 'do is due for a comeback. GQ proclaimed the pompadour—picture John Travolta in "Grease"—and other playful, retro cuts are making a resurgence for men. Vogue predicted "messy dressy"—elegant despite being completely disheveled—will appeal to women with short or long hair.

But can the style magazines be trusted in Chicago? To help sort out the spring trends, RedEye surveyed a diverse sample of local salons—from the posh and pricey to the low-key neighborhood hangouts—to determine which hairstyles will sizzle when the sun comes out to stay and what salons are offering to keep their customers coming back for more.

Halo (For Men) in the Loop

Price: $45 for the full-service cut

Hot styles: Cuts that are short on the sides and longer on top—think Jon Hamm as Don Draper from "Mad Men"—are en vogue among Halo's clientele. Stylist Rebecca Coster says many men are embracing longer cuts because of their versatility, meaning they can go from business to casual in a snap.

Perks: Haircuts include a scalp massage, paraffin hand wax, complementary beverage, hot towel and facial toner, and a free touch-up within two weeks of your appointment. Each station also has its own flat-screen TV.

Red 7 Salon in River North

Price: $60-$135

Hot styles: Super-sleek looks are out and unpolished styles that look like they've been slept on for the night have been popular with women at this high-end River North salon. Stylist Stephanie Bloom says clients are asking for the looks of trusted favorites such as Reese Witherspoon and Heidi Klum, but also more versatile, face-appropriate styles like that of Ginnifer Goodwin. Center parts, hair accessories (such as headbands, rhinestones and feathers) and single messy braids also are coming back with a vengeance.

Perks: Complementary wine and beer and massage services.

Swagger: A Men's Salon
in Ukrainian Village

Price: $20-$39

Hot styles: Clean, classic looks with a modern twist such as the combed-over side part are popular among men at in this Ukie Village neighborhood joint. Owner Megan Praner said she gets requests for cuts like Bradley Cooper's character in The Hangover, and African-American clients are going for a more natural feel with locks that are rebellious and unruly.

Perks: Free neck trims between appointments.

The Belmont Barbershop
in Roscoe Village

Price: $17

Hot styles: Guys at The Belmont Barbershop may be on a budget, but they're still demanding more than the No. 2 clippers. "Sleek and controlled '50s styles are something we're seeing a lot of," owner Josh Cooley said. And they're sooo over shaggy hipster cuts—higher, off-the-forehead cuts such as Brad Pitt's look in "Inglourious Basterds" are fashionable for 2010.

Perks: For budget-friendly clips, the tried-and-true candy dish (as well as the lower price point) is enough to keep customers coming back for a no-fuss haircut. This particular shop offers complementary neck shaves.

Price: $19

Hot styles: Three words: The Barack Obama. Owner Abdul Karim Shakir said many of his clients are asking for some form of the presidential 'do, whether it's a higher or lower variation of the closely trimmed clip. Graphical elements such as letters or stripes are finding their way into styles for 20-somethings, while other clients are going for bald heads with fuller facial hair.

Perks: This old-school barbershop offers wireless Internet, flat-panel TVs and all the latest mags.

Hairitics Dye for Your Beliefs
in Logan Square

Price: $50

Hot styles: Women are looking for textured, shorter looks that have a grown-up messy flair, according to owner Julia Regalado. Clients have asked for Katie Holmes-style bobs with funky, playful textures, and African-American styles have included classic and curly variations that work with natural textures instead of fighting them.

Perks: This quirky neighborhood shop offers monthly discounts with special prices, as well as referral incentives for the salon's regulars.

Connections Salon
in Humboldt Park

Price: $35

Hot styles: Long, flowing curls a la Fergie from the Black Eyed Peas have women clamoring for more movement this spring, hairdresser Moi Gonzales said. Waves and texture are hot, but so is simplicity—most clients want a style they can achieve at home in record time. African-American clients are stepping away from straight-laced hair toward soft, wavier looks with greater movement.

Perks: With a price tag significantly lower than the Chicago standard of $50 for a woman's cut, tea, coffee and bottled water are about the only extras you're going to get.

Strange Beauty Show
in Ukrainian Village

Price: $45-50

Hot styles: Co-owner Audrey Olenick said longer hair extensions and peekaboo highlights with a strand or two of bright, bold colors are in for spring. Keratin treatments have become a must-have for curly-haired clients. And after all these years, Olenick said clients still are bringing in shots of Jennifer Aniston's lush locks.

Perks: The cult following that descends upon this ultra-artistic hair salon partakes in the complementary beverages, stand-up Pac-Man video console, old-school Nintendo and retro LP player, along with free bang trims between cuts.

Amerykahn dream

By Jesse Washington

ASSOCIATED PRESS

Just when you've lost faith in the music industry to do the right thing, along comes Erykah Badu with another deliciously strange album.

Since her debut 13 years ago, Badu has walked a path unlike any other, an intensely personal mix of pulsating midtempo grooves and seductive/aggressive lyrics. Her latest CD, "New Amerykah Part Two: Return of the Ankh," continues her eclectic tradition, as she uses one of music's most recognizable voices to create a moody, belligerent yet vulnerable tapestry.

Badu wrote and produced most of the songs and is executive producer of the album, so the vision is firmly in her control. That's no surprise coming from a woman who gets paid under the banner of "Divine Pimp Publishing."

What you get is a woman who needs yet fears love, a "recovering undercover over-lover" unafraid to reveal her soft spots, as she does on the startling, guerilla-style video for "Window Seat."

She's also not afraid to bring back an old beat or a classic sample and put her stamp on it—"Turn Me Away (get MuNNY) reworks the infamous Junior M.A.F.I.A. tune from a woman's point of view, and "Fall In Love (your funeral)" relies on the popular "Intimate Friends" lick used by Alicia Keys' "Unbreakable," among others.

Scarface School Play

First you get the power, then you get the money, then you get the kids? The clip opens with a shot of tiny Tony Montana in what looks like an elementary school play based on the classic gangster movie "Scarface." The action really gets going when tiny Tony uses a cute accent to say the famous line, "Say hello to my little friend." Yes, say hello to all my little friends for delivering such performances!

Red Steel 2

Nintendo Wii

Pigeonholing "Red Steel 2" into a particular genre is no easy task, but here is a first stab: an East-meets-West, samurai-inspired yet futuristic first-person slicer presented in a visual style similar to "Borderlands." That may seem like an odd blend, but the good far outweighs the cheesy, which turns a Wii MotionPlus-enhanced remote into a katana samurai sword. DIRK LAMMERS, AP

ALBUM

Raymond v. Raymond

Usher

"Raymond v. Raymond" craftily mixes hot beats from the likes of will.i.am, Jermaine Dupri and Danja with more adult concerns, though Usher remains interested in finding love in any number of clubs. The problems come when Usher forgets his age. The AutoTuned "OMG," produced by will.i.am, simply chases a trendy sound that would be better-suited to Usher protege Justin Bieber, while the super-serious "Mars vs. Venus" feels more like a doctoral thesis than a pop song.

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle might gag on his afternoon tea if he were to see what director Guy Ritchie and a team of five writers have done with his creation. Thanks to CGI magic, 1890s London is re-created in vivid detail. The villain in the piece is the murderous Lord Blackwood, a devotee of the occult. The finale atop the Tower Bridge is a memorable one.

Between the Lines

Stone Temple Pilots

Though Stone Temple Pilots' comeback single "Between the Lines"—from its first studio album in nearly nine years—plays like the revved-up rock of their heyday, it feels like their glory has faded. In case you missed the winking drug reference in the title, Scott Weiland spells it out in the chorus, singing, "You were always my favorite drug, even when we used to take drugs." At least the guitar solo sounds good.

Janet Jackson works through personal trauma in new Tyler Perry movie

By Miki Turner

FOR REDEYE

NEW YORK Janet Jackson's meaty role in Tyler Perry's "Why Did I Get Married Too?" is the stuff actors would kill for. But the truth is Jackson is doing more reacting than acting in the sequel to Perry's 2007 film about the complex relationships between four couples that get together once a year to discuss love and marriage.

As an actress, Jackson had to dramatically go where she's never gone before. And a lot of the emotion you'll see on screen was fueled by events in her private life—most notably the passing of her brother, Michael, who died during the filming of "Too," and the breakup of her longtime relationship with music mogul Jermaine Dupri.

"It was very cathartic to work through those scenes," Jackson told RedEye during an interview in her hotel suite. "It was nice. I needed it. It came at the right time. I really needed it. I was very happy that [Perry] gave it to me at that point for sure. I loved the fact that she got to express herself in such great lengths. After reading the script and then going through what had happened in my own family, I was really thankful for the opportunity to completely let go of some things, to just unleash."

Jackson's character, Patricia, is a psychologist and best-selling author who appears to have a model marriage with her husband, Gavin (Malik Yoba). In "Too," which hit theaters Friday, Patricia is forced to deal with the pain of losing a child and the effect that trauma has had on her marriage.

Jackson's favorite scene in the movie is when she releases those frustrations by smashing her glass furniture.

"Bashing up that stuff with the golf club, I enjoyed that," Jackson said. "I really enjoyed that. I thank Tyler for writing her that way because I think it will catch people off-guard. I thank him for letting me take her to a completely different place."

The cast also helped Jackson through the pain of losing her brother.

"We were there for whatever she needed," co-star Jill Scott said.

When news of Michael's death reached the

LIONSGATE

MORE 'MARRIED'?

Will there be a third "Why Did I Get Married?" movie? Janet Jackson hopes so—mostly because she's ready to travel. "I was telling Tyler if we do a trilogy, I told him I thought it should take place in Europe somewhere for our next vacation," she said. "Like someplace in Paris or the Mediterranean or Spain."

set June 25, Perry shut down production and flew to California to support the Jacksons.

"Tyler has created such a family," Jackson said. At 43, Jackson feels she is evolving both as an artist and a woman.

"Too" is her fourth feature film and the previous three—"Poetic Justice," "Nutty Professor II: The Klumps" and "Why Did I Get Married?" all won their opening weekends at the box office. Musically, the Grammy-winning singer was one of the top-selling artists in the '90s and has recorded 10 albums. She co-wrote and produced her latest track, "Nothing," with Dupri. It's on the "Too" soundtrack and was influenced by the film's script.

"I love what I do," she said. "I don't ever want to give up my music. Acting is such a challenge for me and it was my first passion and I'm just now starting to dive into it the way I've wanted to all my life. I let the music kind of take over. It's important to me to continue and evolve and to do more in film and music and explore different types of music."

Jackson describes her personal life as "a work in progress."

"I don't ever want to stop evolving," she said. "I think when you stop at something, something is extremely wrong. You should always be working on yourself in some way to better yourself."

THE LAST

Moody child of divorcee Ronnie (Miley Cyrus) would have had a terrible summer if she didn't meet Will (Liam Hemsworth), an all-American guy who inexplicably finds her charming. Without regard for their son's happiness, Will's rich parents are bound to disapprove of his unpolished new gal.

The buzz: That ominous title suggests this will be yet another Nicholas Sparks story ("A Walk to Remember") that relies on death to draw out the tears. On the bright side, the recent Sparks adaptation "Dear John" was solid, and typically reliable Greg Kinnear is on hand as Ronnie's protective dad.

The verdict: In an alternate world, a clean-and-focused Lindsay Lohan would play Ronnie. Instead we get Cyrus, the worst movie star since Dane Cook and whose emotional range includes happy and mad and nothing in between. "The Last Song" is inches from self-parody and never moving, both because it's shamelessly corny and totally unconvincing. Not to mention grating: When Will tells Ronnie, "You're not like the other girls," you expect him to add, "You're much more annoying."

Did you know? Ronnie's incessantly goofy brother Jonah (Bobby Coleman) tells his dad he knows what PMS stands for: "Pissed at men syndrome." Try that joke on for size at home and let us know how it works out.

Check allergies at the door

Situation: How do I improve indoor air quality?

Solution: Keep it clean and invest in allergenproof solutions.

Spring is here, and so are seasonal allergies in all their sneezy, itchy, watery glory. While there's not much you can do about airborne allergens outdoors, you do have some control over your home. According to the EPA, "a growing body of scientific evidence" indicates that indoor air is more polluted than outdoor air—even in industrialized cities such as Chicago. Whether or not you have allergies, these solutions can help improve the air quality in your space.

Stop it at the door

Shoes track a lot of dirt and dust into the home, so it helps to have a spot just outside the front door where you can remove them. If you have a pet, try to keep it out of the bedroom and don't let it sleep on the bed. Carpets are huge dust-trappers, so keep rugs to a minimum (if you can't, make sure to vacuum regularly and avoid thick-pile rugs) and don't store firewood indoors.

Keep your home clean

According to National Geographic's Green Guide, cleaners that include chemical irritants actually can exacerbate asthma and allergies. Use green cleaners such as vinegar, lemon juice and hot soapy water to wipe down kitchen surfaces daily. A garbage can with a pest-proof lid is a good investment. It also helps to take out the garbage and recycling regularly. If you have severe allergies and your home is carpeted, think about buying a high-quality HEPA (high efficiency particulate absorbing) vacuum, which includes a type of filter required by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention to remove at least 99.97 percent of airborne particles.

Consider an air purifier

Non-HEPA air purifiers can emit ozone, degrading your indoor air quality, so it's important to look for an air cleaner with a HEPA filter.

Clean Air Delivery Rate also is key because it measures the amount of air moving through the filter—the greater the CADR, the larger the space the air purifier can effectively clean. Good air purifiers have a sturdy frame with top or side vents (downward facing vents just direct air toward the floor, stirring up more dust). Expect to pay at least a few hundred dollars for a high-quality filter. I've used the Austin Air HealthMate Jr. ($340, left, at austinair.com) with good results.

Dustproof your mattress

Microscopic dust mites usually aren't harmful to humans, but people with dust allergies are sensitive to them. They feed on dead skin cells and prefer warmth, darkness and high humidity, which makes them fond of mattresses, pillows and bedding. Mission Allergy (missionallergy.com) sells microfiber covers, starting around $50, which create a mite-free barrier between your skin and the mattress.

Talk to your doctor

According to the U.S. Department of Health, airborne allergens affect more than 35 million Americans. Many people require medication or immunotherapy, in addition to home allergy proofing, to minimize their reactions. These steps alone won't treat your allergies, but they're a significant part of a program you can develop with your doctor.

Um, no thanks

Health advocates hope calorie revelations alter eating habits

Associated Press

Will a national requirement for chain restaurants to post calorie counts sound the death knell for bacon cheeseburgers and double-chocolate doughnuts?

The calorie-posting mandate, signed into law by President Obama as part of the health care overhaul, assumes diners will feel the culinary equivalent of sticker shock when confronted with calorie counts for greasy, sugary and fatty foods.

Anti-obesity advocates also hope that forcing restaurants to reveal calorie counts will coax the chains to offer healthier options.

Early studies do show some modest changes in consumer behavior in New York City, which enacted its pioneering calorie-

THE NEW LAW

The federal legislation will require chain restaurants with 20 or more locations to include calorie counts on menus, menu boards and drive-thrus. The Food and Drug Administration will have a year to write the new rules, which will supersede local laws.

posting law in 2008. But whether the measure also is pushing healthier items onto menus is less clear.

Researchers at the Stanford Graduate School of Business found that calorie postings in New York City Starbucks led to a 6 percent reduction in calories per transaction. Brian Elbel of New York University's School of Medicine found about one in four

New York City customers who noticed the calorie labels said it influenced their choices, though his study didn't detect people actually purchasing fewer calories.

People eating fast-food lunches earlier this week at chain shops in Albany, N.Y., seemed indifferent to the calorie numbers now posted on menu boards.

"I noticed it, but I ignored it," said Stacy Rijssenbeek, who shared a 12-inch spicy Italian Subway sub with her mother. "It's all a bit overwhelming. I'll have to get used to it."

Over at McDonald's, Sean Ryan said he didn't even notice the calorie numbers as he ate his Chicken McNuggets.

"I exercise," he said. "It doesn't really bother me. I only eat at McDonald's when I'm too lazy to pack a lunch."

Celebrities go coconuts over tropical water

Associated Press

BERKELEY, Calif. Here's something that could make Gilligan and the Skipper smile. Coconut water is making a splash in the beverage market, touted by manufacturers and fans as the healthy way to hydrate.

"It's an exciting category right now," says Arthur Gallego, spokesman for Vita Coco, which recently got an endorsement from none other than Madonna.

Coconut water—the liquid found in green, i.e. young, coconuts—has been popular in tropical countries ever since someone figured out how to crack that nut. And it's been available in packaged form in ethnic markets and natural food stores for some time in the U.S.

But now it's showing up in mainstream supermarkets, packaged in juice-box style packages and coming in an array of flavors, such as peach-mango and tangerine.

"What is incredible to see is that the consumption of coconut water has trickled down from the natural food stores to the mainstream," says Rodrigo Veloso, founder and CEO of Los Angeles-based O.N.E., One Natural Experience, makers of O.N.E. Coconut Water.

Besides Madonna, Matthew McConaughey and Demi Moore invested in Vita Coco, which was founded in 2004 and saw sales jump from about $4 million in 2007 to $20 million in 2009, according to Gallego. Meanwhile, Pepsi has invested in O.N.E. A third company in the market is Zico, founded in 2004.

WHAT'S IN THE WATER?

Fans of coconut water praise it for being relatively low-calorie, natural and packed with important nutrients. For instance, an 11.2-ounce serving of Vita Coco contains almost 700 milligrams of potassium, more than a banana.

No cheering allowed

Though fantasy baseball is best played with a cool, President Obama-like logic, it's only natural that hometown bias sometimes gets in the way. This is especially true when Chicago fantasy owners get caught up in the hype of recent additions to the Sox's and Cubs' rosters. We tend to expect too much, too soon—just ask Milton Bradley. Well, not to worry. Dr. Fantasy is ready to give you a clinical fantasy analysis of Chicago's newest MLB stars.

MARLON BYRD Cubs outfielder

The Cubs have cornered the market in disappointing free-agent outfielders in the past few years; don't expect Byrd to shatter that trend. He won't be a bust, but the red flags are there—he's coming off a career year in the hitter's paradise of the Texas Rangers, and he's now 34. Byrd's worth a look as a fourth or fifth outfielder in most leagues but no more.

Dr. Fantasy's prediction: .280 batting average, 70 RBIs, 15 HRs, 14 steals

JUAN PIERRE White Sox outfielder

Pierre started underrated, became over-rated around the time he joined the Cubs and is back to being underrated now that he has joined the Sox—at least for fantasy purposes. Forget power numbers; Pierre should rack up a boatload of steals with a good batting average. Snag him in the early to middle rounds.

Dr. Fantasy's prediction: .299 batting average, 80 runs, 53 steals

TOM GORZELANNY Cubs pitcher

Which Gorzelanny will show up in 2010: the left-handed phenom who showed promise for the Pirates in '07 or the flameout who got dumped in '09 and was picked off the scrapheap by the Cubs? I predict somewhere in between Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. There is a chance he could be a deep sleeper, but let him sleep first—meaning don't draft him until the last round or so.

Dr. Fantasy's prediction: 7 wins, 95 innings, 4.10 ERA, 80 strikeouts

JAKE PEAVY White Sox pitcher

The new right-handed ace of the South Side is a classic high risk/high reward candidate. Fantasy owners might salivate over his stat-stuffing track record but should be wary of his injury-prone body and a possible slow adjustment to the American League. Don't let him fall off the map, but drafting him in the first couple of rounds is silly.

Dr. Fantasy's prediction:

12 wins, 170
innings, 3.85
ERA, 185
strikeouts

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeye.chicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. “Blanks” used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 3rd Edition. FOUR RACK TOTAL _____
TIME LIMIT: 20 MIN

Roger Rabbit vs. Rabbit from '8 Mile'

Jessica Rabbit found Roger's goofiness charming, but we find Eminem's "Sweet Home Alabama" riff "I live at home in a trailer" just plain clever.

Rabbit from '8 Mile' vs. the White Rabbit

It must be hard for the White Rabbit to live with all those crazies in Wonderland, but Rabbit has it worse in Detroit.

Trix Rabbit vs. the White Rabbit

Trix may be for kids, but the White Rabbit's millions in box-office dollars for "Alice in Wonderland" definitely is grown-up.

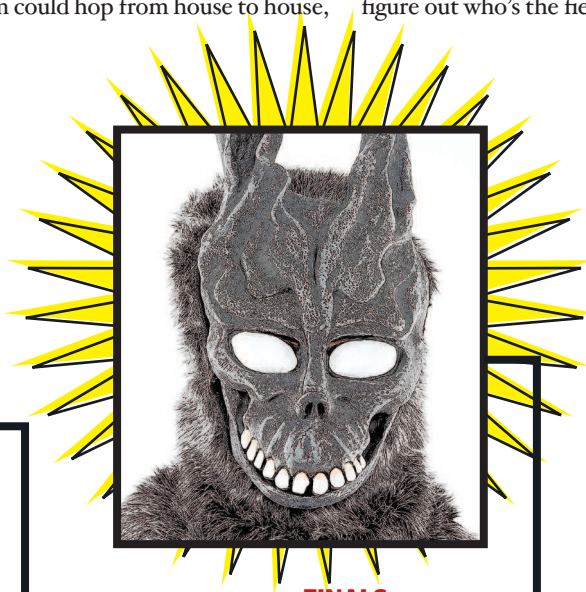

RABBIT MADNESS

Cute-as-a-button bunnies have been living with this whole "adorable" reputation for far too long. In reality, bunnies are fierce. Take the rabbit of the hour—the Easter Bunny—for instance.

Only a mammal with iron knees and a supreme command of the time-space continuum could hop from house to house, dropping off Easter baskets full of candy and stickers at children's homes all in one night. Seriously, where does he carry all those baskets? Even that lame-o Santa takes a sleigh. So, in honor of our pal the Easter Bunny, we're going to pit all of pop culture's most badass bunnies and rabbits head to head to figure out who's the fiercest. ARIEL ALEXOVICH, REDEYE

FINALS

Frank the Bunny vs. Rabbit from '8 Mile'

The ominous, terrifying Frank is hands down the fiercest thing we've ever seen—bunny OR human.

Frank the Bunny vs. Little Bunny Foo Foo

Foo Foo, way too busy scooping up the field mice and bopping them on the head, undoubtedly will forget to bop Frank.

Frank the Bunny from 'Donnie Darko' vs. 'The House Bunny'

Jake Gyllenhaal's worst nightmare would have no tolerance for Anna Faris' airheaded Playboy bunny-turned-sorority gal.

Little Bunny Foo Foo vs. Ralphie's bunny costume

Love that pink fuzzy ensemble Aunt Clara sent you, Ralphie, but you're celebrating the wrong holiday.

HONORABLE MENTION GOES TO ...

Bugs Bunny, Cadbury Bunny, Peter Cottontail, Energizer Bunny, Mr. Floppy from "Unhappily Ever After," the Hare from "The Tortoise and the Hare," Nestle Quik Rabbit, Bucky O'Hare, Rabbit from "Winnie the Pooh," Br'er Rabbit, Peter Rabbit, the Velveteen Rabbit, Thumper from "Bambi," the Were-Rabbit and Kendra Wilkinson.

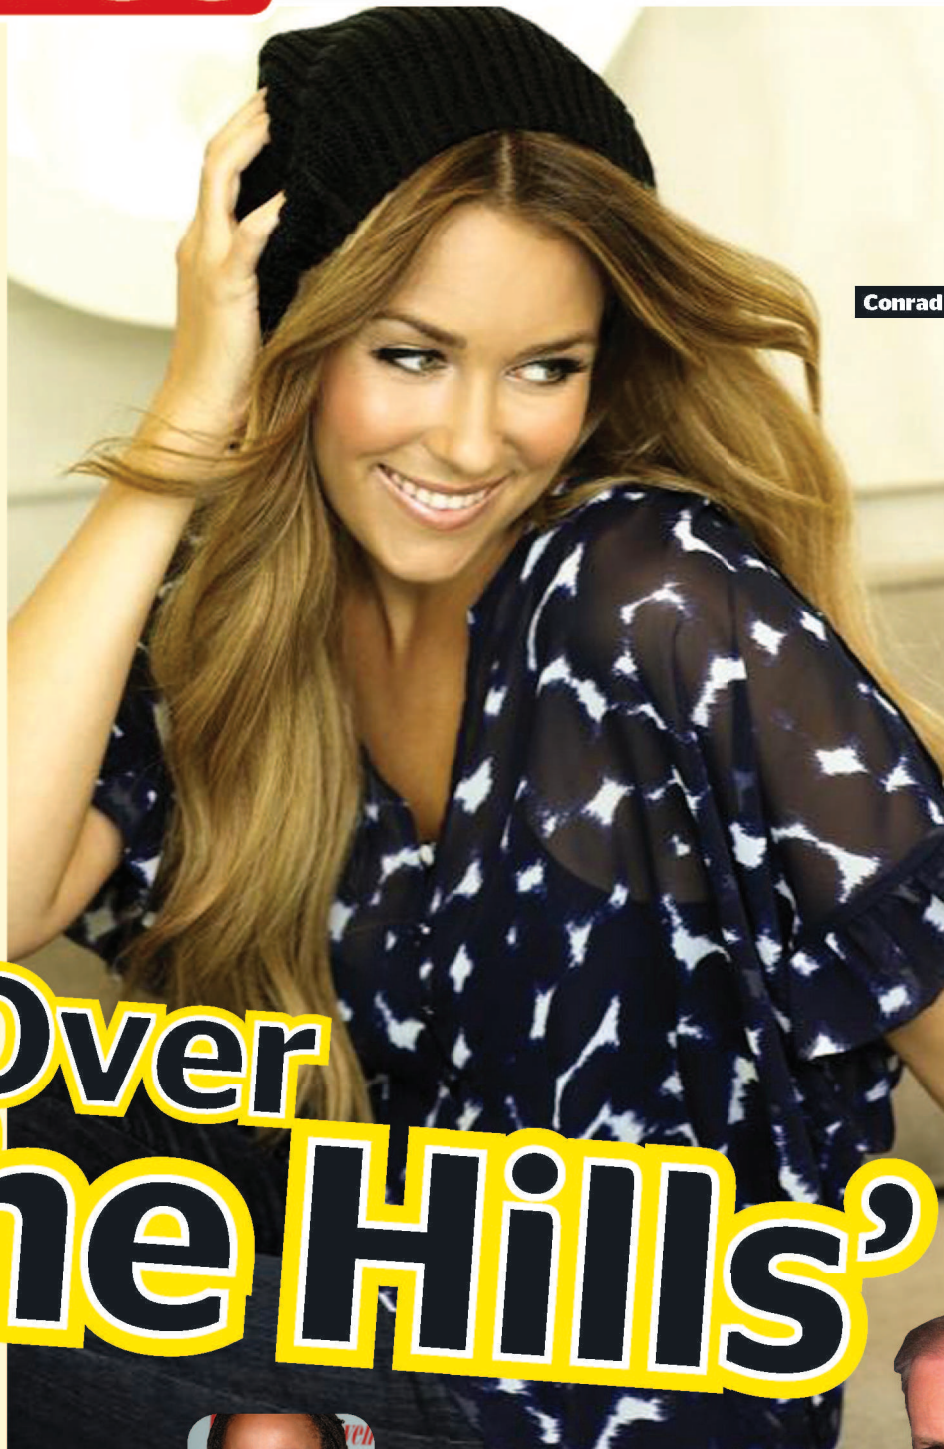

red hot

Lauren Conrad says her love life is better off without "The Hills."

"As soon as I started doing the show, I never had a boyfriend off camera; it wasn't allowed," LC, who is dating "My Boys" actor Kyle Howard, tells Glamour magazine. "So I had a rule: I would date someone for two weeks, and that was it. Anyway, the first two weeks are the best!"

Conrad's policy also helped weed out the Mr. Wrongs.

"[If] they were willing to be on camera [so] quickly, I knew it wasn't going to work out," she says.

Over 'The Hills'

'He's a broken man'

Allegations of Jesse James' infidelity in his marriage to Sandra Bullock and the ensuing media coverage have "destroyed Jesse's entire universe," the biker celeb's lawyer told The Associated Press. "Right now, he's a broken man," Joe Yanny said, adding that James still loves his wife and hopes their marriage will survive.

THE DIGIT

That's how many years S. Epatha Merkerson (above) has played Lt. Anita Van Buren on "Law and Order," the longest tenure of any cast member. Merkerson has asked producers to be released after the current season, according to The Hollywood Reporter.

Revenge of Kumar

Look out, White Castle! Kal Penn is leaving his position as President Obama's director of public engagement to go back to Hollywood, ew.com reports. The site says a Christmas-themed "Harold & Kumar" flick is first on his to-do list, scheduled for a 2011 holiday release. Our gift request: Bring back Neil Patrick Harris!

Fire up the jets

There's no turning back now. The official site for "Iron Man 2" went live Friday at ironmanmovie.marvel.com, offering special effects-tastic trailers, wallpaper and stills of the Robert Downey Jr. flick, due out May 7.

Sheen out?

If Charlie Sheen (left) walks away from his CBS sitcom, will they rename it "One and a Half Men"? We may find out after multiple reports surfaced late this week that the troubled actor is considering walking away from the hit TV show when his contract expires at the end of this season. Sheen, 44, has been dealing with legal problems since he was charged with assault after a fight with his wife in December.

Sleaze imitates life

Bob Odenkirk thinks his sleazy "Breaking Bad" lawyer could make a lot of money in Chicago. The Naperville native told RedEye plenty of Saul Goodmans probably are working in the Windy City. "You kidding me?" he said. "Look, there are a lot of drug dealers in Chicago, and they all need lawyers. ... Just look at the nearest bus-stop bench ad, or even a bus that's driving away and has a guy pointing at you asking, 'Do you need a lawyer!?'"

» You can watch Odenkirk and "Breaking Bad" at 9 p.m. Sunday on AMC, and read more from the interview at redeyechicago.com/showpatrol.
